Carolina Gazette.

From MONDAY November 26th, to MONDAY December 3d, 1750.

From the GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE for August, 1750.

Letter from Algiers, concerning the Reception of the English Plenipotentiaries, dated July 29.

ON the 10th arrived in this Bay from Port-Mahon, 4 Engliſh Men of War, commanded by Commodore Keppel. An Indiſpoſition having prevented him from landing immediately, he did not come hither till the 13th. He then landed with a numerous retinue. He was ſaluted with cannon from the caſtle: The ſhip whereon he hoiſted his flag anſwered with the ſame number. In the afternoon Mr. Keppel, and Mr. Stanyford, the Britiſh conſul, veſted as well as the former with the quality of miniſter plenipotentiary, went with a great retinue to the audience of the Dey; at which they communicated their full power, and preſented him with a letter from the king their maſter: But as the leaſt circumſtances in this country are apt to occaſion difficulties, there aroſe at this audience two: The one was Mr. Stanyford's wearing a ſword, a diſtinction which the Dey pretended belonged only to Mr. Keppel; and the other was in reſpect to the time of day when the two plenipotentiaries went to have their audience, which was in the afternoon, the time, it ſeems, when thoſe who wait upon the Dey have the liberty of ſitting in his preſence. The Dey, under pretence of Mr. Stanyford's wearing his ſword, cauſed it to be told the next day to the plenipotentiaries, that, if they had any thing further to offer, they muſt appear at the ordinary audience, which begins at day-break, and ends at half an hour after nine in the morning, during which time the Dey ſits at his gate upon a ſtone bench covered with a lion's ſkin, at the bottom of a great court, ſmoaking a long pipe; and this is all the majeſty the king of Algiers takes upon him when he determines diſputes of all kinds, and hears every body who preſent themſelves, even the ſlaves. Mr. Keppel and Mr. Stanyford determined not to have an audience at this common time; wherefore the Dey was obliged to deſiſt from theſe two difficulties. Nothing however has yet been done in regard to their commiſſion, they being obliged to wait the return of the Algerine ambaſſador ſent to England, whoſe report the Dey thinks fit previouſly to know. Moſt of the conſuls of foreign nations went to viſit Mr. Keppel; but the French conſul excuſed himſelf, alledging that he knew the commodore expected the title of excellence, which it was not in his power to give him, becauſe the French commodores did never take that title upon them.
